"Cooperative Interaction of Enterprises Both of Small and Big Business and Its Organizational Support"

by I. Buzko and L. Buzdakov

The experience of economically developed countries concerning interaction both of small and big enterprise structures testifies to further development and necessity of their cooperation. The carried out researches of a domestic situation make it possible to confirm the absence of sufficient level of motivation concerning its enlarging. The contribution of independent small enterprises in finished products of big enterprises is meanwhile insignificant, cooperative interaction of big enterprises with small ones takes place mainly as usual trading operations. The revealed obstacles should not define the tendencies and directions of development of cooperative interaction of enterprises of small and big business. Encouragement of such cooperation should become a more important compound both of the state and corporate policy. Working out and introduction of corresponding actions of legal, organizational, infrastructural and economic character will help a small-scale business to function effectively in modern conditions of world financial crisis and will also create the favorable conditions for realization of the positive effect of interaction of small and big business in future. Cooperation of the small and big enterprises will make it possible to compensate a certain rank of imperfection of the state policy of support of a small-scale business and to provide its self-organization.
