

Abstract of the Article
"Theoretical Aspects of Company Financial Security"
by O. Ponomarenko

At the present stage of economic development and increased competition the security of the economic system becomes urgent. It should be noted that in the scientific literature the theoretical aspects of economic security are a relatively new area of research. Financial security is considered as a component of economic security, while there are several approaches to define the meaning of economic security in general, and of financial security in particular. The urgency of the paper is in the design and development of the problem of company financial security, which is the basis for sustainable development of an individual enterprise, and of the state as well. Scientific novelty of the article is to improve the definition of company financial security and to identify the major groups of indicators grading the level of company financial security.

In conclusion of this research, based on the analysis of given and many other ideas as for the company financial security, the definition of company financial security is proposed.

The company financial security – the level of company financial condition and activities which are determined qualitatively and quantitatively, is aimed at achieving this status, which is characterized by balance and quality of financial instruments of the economic system, and provides it the ability to realize its mission and ensure sustainable development, standing the negative impact of internal and external destabilizing factors. In the article on the basis of the analysis of scientific literature the major groups of indicators are identified, by which the level of company financial security should be defined: assessment of return and profitability, solvency (liquidity), financial stability, investment and innovation activity, the formation rates of financial resources, effective use of financial resources. On the basis of the prevailing opinions the main directions for further research are highlighted in the article.