

Abstract of the Article
"Credit as a Source of Financing of the Entities"
by Yu. Golub

The aim of the research is a generalization and author's disclosures of such notion as "credit supply".

As a result of the research the author conducted an analysis of generalization of the essence and meaning of the "credit support", which allowed to clarify the noted definitions. This shows that the listed specification takes into account the shortcomings of the existing definitions of that question. Also in this work the key functions put to the credit provision have been considered and the main directions of its possible classification have been defined. In total this complements the general nature and essence of the "credit support", and thus makes the received results more meaningful.

At the same time as a further research direction the consideration of the mechanism of credit provision in the contemporary economy should be determined.