

Abstract of the Article
"Institutional Conditions for Attracting Investments in the Agrarian Sector of Ukraine"
by N. Zynchenko

The urgency of the paper is that in the conditions of economic relations between branches of Ukraine the effective functioning of the economy can be accompanied by active attraction of investments. The investment policy and efficient investment control is the important precondition at this time which can solve many problems in Ukraine.

The aim of the article is to analyse the conditions of development of the agrocomplex of Ukraine under which there should be high investment activity, and to identify a number of actions to control investments for regulation of the investment policy.

The object of the research is the agroindustrial enterprises of Ukraine.

It is offered to develop methodological positions for working out a mechanism to attract investments into economy of Ukraine, and particularly in the agricultural complex. For working out the mechanism to attract investments into the economy of agricultural complex it is necessary to substantiate the specific forms, methods and means which will be directed on intensifying the investment activity. For attracting investors it is necessary to pass a number of laws which would provide a clear, stable and fair set of rules and settings needed for the further agroindustrial production.

In case of improvement of the legal and legislative base of investment Ukraine can get access to huge internal and foreign resources which will give the chance to the Ukrainian agroindustrial enterprises to carry out investment projects.