"Social Audit as a Technology of Social Processes Management"

by S. Polyakova

Social audit is one of the most important innovations in the system of modern management of social relations. It is an important constituent of the mechanism of defining and fixing the level of social responsibility of a country, business and public institutes. Social audit as an effective and needed technology of regulation of socio-economic relations is developing rapidly in the countries with a market economy. In Ukraine the implementation of the system of social audit is in its initial phase.

Some measures for implementation of the system of social audit were introduced in Ukraine. The first step in creating national system of social audit should be the development of its legal basis: adoption of laws which will regulate relations in social auditing, development of standards, dataware system, education, improvement of legal awareness and responsibility among officials and other aspects in the sphere of social auditing. It is essential to develop and approve a Social Audit Law. Besides, the methodology of its carrying out is to be approved by a special document from the Ministry of Labour and Social Policy in Ukraine. One of the most important grounds for implementation of the system of social audit of social programmes is the use of modern technology of automated information processing through its integration from incomplete billing information and analytical systems of all forms of ownership and departmental subordination into corporate information and analytical system with functions of social processing. Another important step is introduction of social cards. With the lapse of time adoption of a single database and social cards will create a necessary ground for developing national system of social audit that will become a full element of economy as a conscious need in society and economy.
