

Abstract of the Article
«Theoretical Aspects of the Essential Understanding of the Category
“Savings of the Population”»
by I.O. Dobrovolska

The aim of this article is a synthesis of already existing approaches to the definition of "savings of the population" and the provision of the author's vision of its disclosure.

To reach this aim the following tasks have been solved:

- different approaches to define the essential understanding of the category "savings" have been summarized;
- a lot of classification features have been discovered, according to them separate approaches to the definition of "savings" are considered;
- the copyright to clarify the category of "savings" has been provided;
- key areas for the development and use of savings have been outlined.

Under the authority of the conducted analysis of the already existing approaches and definitions for the disclosure of the essential understanding of savings, its specified definition was given.

The freshness of the submitted clarification is in the emphasis of the special role of the relations system on the occasion of the emergence and formation of savings, determination of the purpose of their formation and importance of saving and increasing the share of income, which is defined as savings.